DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Old Red Schoolhouse stands along side of Maryland Route 16 near Williston. It is a frame structure with apparently one story, however, there is a second story with windows in the gables. The building consists of a three bay long main portion, with a one bay long wing on the northeast (part of which is the original vestibule) and a one story hyphen connecting the garage. It stands on a high brick foundation and there is a porch entry on the southwest bay of the facade. The windows have 6/6 sash and louvered shutters.

Originally the building had a vestibule entrance on the northeast side and there were stick style brackets in the apex of the roofs. An old photo in possession of the owner indicated its appearance around 1900.

The garage which is a very plain structure with gable facing the road, 90° to the school, was originally constructed as a store with a canopy over the gas pumps. The latter canopy was removed to another structure near the garage.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Old Red Schoolhouse was constructed around the 1880's by Elias Williamson a local gentleman who also built the Williston Church. It is reputed to have been constructed prior to the introduction of public schools in Caroline, which would place its construction in the early 1880's.

The building is a reminder of the days of private education.
